WHAT'S UP IN 2006

Nikki Alikakos - Still running late, but has finally caught up on her sleep.

Corey Alkire - Undecided about his plans, but can still be seen wearing a walkman continuously.

Chris Alonso - Preparing for the "Tour de France"

Anita Arbogast - "Domestic Engineer"

David Armstrong - Conservation officer who is "blinded" to the seasonal game limit.

Liddy Barb - Completed a degree in business and gainfully employed in her field.

Travis Barb - "Rip Van Winkle" . . . asleep again!

Jessica Beverage - A Master's Degree graduate working in Carolina.

Mark Beverage - Calls Pocahontas County "home" with his family.

Mike Beverage - Electrical Engineer.

David Blankenship - Preparing for the 2008 Summer Olympics as a competitor in soccer, still searching for that ideal "blind date."

Travis Blankenship - Logging as his livelihood.

Johnnie Boggs - Living out West and employed as a Forester.

Josh Bond - Had spent so much time in Guidance Office that he has become a Counselor for "Troubled Teens."

Jason Brickles - Settled down with a wife and children.

Dege Burdette - Has opened her own Lollipop Mall. She created 223 varieties of lollipops and sells them around the world.

She tries them out on her six children.

Sharon Burgess - Is an advisor to U.S. President Elizabeth Dole. She helps Mrs. Dole remain feminine but still get what she wants. Sharon's newest book was just published, "How to Be Nice and Still Get Your Way."

Melissa Cain - was the star of the 2006 Grammy awards. She starred in her own video directed by Eva Jane Dunbrack. They received the award for the best video. Melissa lives in California with her fourth husband and four children. Eva still keeps her home in Pocahontas County with her first husband and three children.

Jimmy Campbell - Now designs shoes for his own shoe company. He is known for his camouflage ski boots and Chippewa basketball shoes.

Jason Carr - Conducts workshops all over the world in how to relax without closing your eyes. He directs most of his work toward high school students.

Dr. Brandy Cassell - Discovered how to genetically create a perfect teacher. She used her PCHS teachers as models and is nominated for a Nobel Prize.

Elissa Corbett - Hosts her own talk show on local WPOC, a TV station which she started as an outlet for her skills as a talker.

Aaron Cumashot - Gave up snow sports to devote his life to teaching Philosophy at Dunmore University. He does take his five children sled-riding to keep in touch with snow.

Morgan Dale - 2004 National Rodeo Champion, now spends his time raising exotic animals at his home in Montana. He sometimes does commentary on ESPN rodeo shows.

Nick Dean - Is now a U.S. Senator who became famous as a lawyer defending what seemed like hopeless causes. There was a TV movie based on his cases called "Nick's Success."

Tommy Dickenson - Runs a virtual reality amusement park in Green Bank called "WV Roads." This has only twisting roads with big-wheel trucks; drivers have the thrill of fast driving without the wrecks. Tommy's wife and seven children love the idea.

Mike Dunbrack - Is trying to go into business with Dege to sell his 76 flavors of popcorn that he developed in his laboratory in downtown Huntersville. He used PCHS students as his taste testers.

Brian Ellis - Followed his adopted namesake and is now head hair stylist at Bob Ellis Designs. Each year this wealthy young man returns to his old high school and explains his philosophy of hair to students.

Samantha Enderby - Has written a series of children's books called "Sam's Way." She gives school lessons in the stories while telling about the life of her children. She lives on a mountain in Northern Pocahontas County with her husband and five kids.

Donnie Ervine - Used so many of Zig's hall passes he decided to take up where cartoonist Gary Larson left off when he retired. Donnie now draws Far Out Cartoon for Ziegler Enterprises.

Ryan Fedak - Is now General Fedak. He received three battlefield promotions in the Icelandic Drug Wars of 2005. He says he learned his skills in surviving in the cold by skiing at Snowshoe.

Chad Foe - Male model for designer of clothes for the future.

Mandy Friel - Advertising executive for the New York Times.

Greg Gainer - Owner and operator of "Sports Stuff," a specialty sports shop.

Roy Galford - Computer programmer for International Hackers Incorporated.

Matt & Mike Gibson - Job sharing; driving a tandem cross country. Their boss thinks there's only one of them.
